A Fat Goldfish.
How to Show Emotion.
$200,000,000 Too Much.
Justice for Mrs. Potiphar.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FRENCH scientists at La Rochelle say the sunfish is, intellectually, the most stupid of all animals. Its eye is five inches in diameter, its brain measures only two-thirds of an inch in diameter, and the fish weighs 662 pounds.

A FULL brother of that sunfish is the American pacifist, who believes that this country can make itself safe and help the cause of peace by remaining unarmed. Ask the fat sunfish what happens when a thin, hungry shark comes along. This country is a fat goldfish.

THERE are many ways of showing deep emotion. Ladies faint. Nordics curse and swear. Latins make very complicated gestures. Nothing so simple would satisfy a Japanese merchant named Sans, living in Paris, in love with a French lady who spurned him. As she approached him on the street, he drew a cut-lash and committed harakari.

THAT'S the Japanese way when a point of honor is involved. You can imagine how it surprised all the French people that saw the thing done publicly.

UNCLE SAM collected from his nephew this year $200,000,000 more than he needs. President Hoover and Secretary Mellon are said to agree that income taxes can safely be cut. It is said that collecting the income tax is costing the government $500,000,000 a year, which seems a great deal. It should be possible to find a better scheme.

BRITAIN'S National Sunday School Union prints an expurgated "Better Edition of the Bible." The incident of Joseph and Potiphar's wife is toned down, which may be related justice to Mrs. Potiphar.

There is nothing except Joseph's own statement to prove that he was innocent. POTIPHAR'S yarn appears in many religions. It is told by Ovid, in his Metamorphoses, with mythological characters in place of the young Jewish boy with the fancy coat and the Egyptian woman. Ovid's "Joseph" was less fortunate in the end than Joseph, the son of Jacob.

WALL STREET speculation didn't quite know whether to go backward or forward Tuesday. The day was called "one of unsettlement." Money had something to do with it. Time loans, for a definite period, were made at the rate of 9 per cent and even higher.

WHEN bankers and others can lend money on safe security at 9 per cent, or even for as high as 15 per cent, they will not bother with 6 per cent bonds for building or other industrial work. In time that will show in lack of employment. But money lenders will make money without effort, and the federal reserve will have this country on a basis of usury.

A TALENTED American actress decides that she must play Shylock, and does, in London. Critics say that her false whiskers are not convincing. The young lady will die convinced that she is a great, unappreciated Shylock.

Millions of young women make the same mistake, undertaking work for which nature did not prepare them. They would laugh if the men insisted on nursing a baby, without the necessary apparatus. Women make efforts outside of their natural field that are just preposterous.

West Indian Storm Heading Out to Sea

HAVANA SAYS FLORIDA COAST OUT OF DANGER

Hurricane is "Almost Stationary" in Caribbean.

CENTER CURVES

Ft. Lauderdale May Get Slight Back Lash.

ORLANDO, Fla., Sept. 26. (INS.)—The center of the West Indian hurricane has now recurred north-northeast and is headed out to sea, according to advices from the Havana, Cuba, weather bureau, picked up here today by the Naval Reserve radio station. It was feared, the advices said, that Ft. Lauderdale may get a slight back lash from the storm.

Danger Ceases, Belief. JUPITER, Fla., Sept. 26. (INS.)—An unconfirmed wireless report picked up at 9:15 a. m. today, by the Jupiter Electric and Supply company station, said that all danger to the Florida coast from the West Indian hurricane had ceased and that the storm had recurred to the southeast and was heading out to sea.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (INS.)—Like a sword over the famous east coast of Florida, the threatened hurricane is standing "almost stationary" in the Caribbean, the United States weather bureau announced at 10 a. m. today.

The bureau issued the following report: "The tropical disturbance has remained almost stationary during the last 12 hours with center apparently a short distance northwest of Nassau, Bahamas. No strong winds are yet reported on the southeast Florida coast but it is likely that winds of hurricane force still prevail near the storm center. Its future course is uncertain but no rapid movement in any direction is indicated. Hurricane warnings remain displayed from Miami to Jupiter and storm warnings elsewhere on the Florida coast from Key West to Daytona.

Breathe Sign of Relief. By JACK R. HORNADY. MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 26. (INS.)—The population of the entire east coast of Florida breathed a sigh of relief and hope today upon the receipt of bulletins from Washington and Jupiter which indicated the hurricane almost stationary over the Caribbean sea and its course uncertain.

The feeling of tenseness gripping the people since the first hurricane warnings were broadcast has not abated, however. After waiting all night and morning for the winds to rise, residents were suffering from lack of sleep and prospect of a continued vigil. The weather here is almost normal. A slight wind is blowing and the sun is shining. Barometers along the coast were reported scarcely moving, with rising tendencies.

Concern Over Bahamas. MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 26. (INS.)—Concern was felt here early today.

GIRL, 17, SAVES LIFE OF BABY

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Sept. 26. (INS.)—Heroic efforts of Ellen Wenger, 17 today, had saved the life of her 1-year-old brother. The young girl found the child immersed and unconscious, in a wash boiler of water, at the home of her father, Daniel Wenger, of Stone Creek, yesterday. She immediately applied artificial respiration to which he responded.

PATIENT LEAPS TO HIS DEATH

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26. (INS.)—Louis Kistler, 45, of Cleveland, plunged to his death from the second story of City hospital early today. Illness was believed to have been responsible for the death. He had been a patient in hospital for several weeks.

HIRED SHEARER

S. W. Wakeman, superintendent of the Fore River plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company, admitted during the senate inquiry into naval propaganda activities, that it was he who employed William B. Shearer to go to Geneva and act as observer at the armament conference.

SIX BIDS FILED

No Decision on Downtown Improvement Type.

George B. Patterson, Wellsville, and Peter Milliron, East Liverpool, were low bidders on three street improvement projects, bids for which were opened by the board of control Tuesday, it was announced today.

One of these projects is the improvement of East Fourth street between Market street and Union street. Patterson's bids on three types of improvement were: Reinforced concrete, $12,166.60; asphaltic concrete on concrete base, $15,046.60; brick on concrete base, $15,874.60. The other bidder for this job was the Allison & Harris Construction company. Their figures were: Reinforced concrete, $13,671.45; asphaltic concrete on concrete base, $18,531.45; brick on concrete base, $15,874.60.

Engineer's estimates on this work were: Concrete, $13,888.10; asphaltic concrete on concrete base, $20,224.10; brick on concrete base, $18,338.10.

Service Safety Director J. W. Moore will confer with property owners in East Fourth street before determining the type of improvement. The contract will probably be awarded this week and work will be started next Monday. Six bids were submitted for the grading and curbing of sections of North street, Sprindale street, and the Panuco river flows through the rich Tampico oil fields.

14 DIE WHEN LAUNCH BURNS

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 26. (INS.)—Fourteen persons, seven of them children, were burned to death when a launch caught fire on the Panuco river, at Tampico, said a dispatch from that city today. The Panuco river flows through the rich Tampico oil fields.

ONE MAN DIES, SIX HURT IN TRAIN WRECK

Engineer is Killed in Crash Near Macon, Ga.

BLAME WASHOUT

Engine and Three Cars Derailed and Overturned.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 26. (INS.)—Edward W. Callahan, 48, engineer, was killed and six persons were injured, one probably fatally, when a Central of Georgia passenger train ran through a washout near here early today.

The engine and three cars of the train plunged into the breach in the track and turned over. The washout occurred near a small creek, four miles west of Wadley, Ga. Inclement rains, believed due to the tropical disturbance approaching the east coast of Florida, caused the creek to overflow.

Five passengers were seriously hurt. The Negro fireman suffered injuries which may prove fatal.

EXPRESS OFFICE WILL BE MOVED

The American Railway Express company, which has been occupying the basement and part of the first floor of the McKinley Hotel building for several years, will move to the passenger station, J. E. Hannahs, freight and passenger agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad company, announced today. Basement of the passenger station is being excavated for storage space. One of the two waiting rooms on the second floor will be eliminated to provide office quarters. The waiting room will be extended to include part of the porch on the second street side of the building. There will be no change in the location of the baggage room.

The air armada will visit the principal cities in the United States to demonstrate the reliability of modern aircraft. In the upper left hand corner is the Spartan plane to be piloted by William Welborn, while in the upper right hand corner is Welborn himself. Lower left is Reuben Wagner, veteran flyer who will pilot the Boeing mail plane shown at lower left.

RIO GRANDE FLOOD WIPES OUT ONE TOWN

No Loss of Life in San Marcial, N. M.

WIRES ARE DOWN

Two Villages Hard Hit; Albuquerque Marooned.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 26. (INS.)—The town of San Marcial, 100 miles south of here, was in ruins today with only half a dozen buildings left standing as the flood waters of the Rio Grande had left a trail of destruction in their wake.

San Acacia and Polvadera, villages to the north of San Marcial, and San Antonio to the south, are reported to have been wiped out. No loss of life has been reported. Fifty San Marcial residents, who were marooned in the Santa Fe railroad station were rescued in a motor boat sent from Elephant Butte. They were transferred to dry land west of the town. All communication with the stricken area has been cut off.

Albuquerque is virtually marooned today, with airplanes the only means of transportation between here and Santa Fe and here and El Paso, Tex., as a result of the torrential rains which sent the Rio Grande on its rampage.

GRID BLEACHER DRIVE PLANNED

Athletic Association Campaign Opens Tomorrow.

Coinciding with the arrival of the East Liverpool Athletic association's new bleachers, to be erected at Patterson Field, Dr. Carl W. McCutcheon today announced plans for a financial campaign which will start tomorrow morning.

The bleachers will cost approximately $2,500 and the association hopes to raise sufficient funds to pay for them in a city-wide drive. When the bleachers are paid for, they will be turned over to the board of education. McCutcheon has selected the following campaign committee which will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. to outline plans: W. E. Wells, Jr., John Elford, Albin Fisher, H. Dan Smith, Lee Cooper, George Brian, William McNutt, Dr. K. D. Dotson, Maurice Newman, Dr. Collin Kinsey, Leonard Webber, J. N. Porter, Harry Altman, Frank Witherspoon, Ted Scheffer, Ben L. Bennett, R. G. Brian, Dewitt Irwin, Ray Brooks and John Greene.

BASEBALL SAD AS YANKEES' LEADER DIES

Major Leagues Pay Tribute to Miller J. Huggins.

FLAGS LOWERED

No American Games On Friday, Funeral Day.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. (INS.)—Robbed by death of one of its most noted and colorful figures, the world of baseball today mourned the passing of Miller J. Huggins. Huggins' death injected once again into baseball that rare note of pathos which has come only at infrequent intervals into the history of the great national game, as both major leagues joined in paying tribute to the passing of the gallant little leader. His own American league will play no games at the order of President Ernest Barnard while flags over the National parks will flutter at half mast.

The baseball world today found it hard to believe that the little manager under whose dynamic leadership the New York Yankees established themselves as one of the greatest teams of all time, was gone; that the little old familiar figure squatted on the Yankee dugout, bright eyes squinted against the hard glare of the infield, had signaled for his last double steal; that the undernourished-looking little fellow who, by the sheer weight of his personality, had driven some two tons of Yankee brawn to six pennants and three world championships, had gone to join that deathless procession of which Christy Mathewson is the shining light.

Yankees to Attend Funeral

But there was the consolation of knowing that as long as baseball is played Miller Jerome Huggins will be remembered as one of the matchless managers of all time. Huggins played his last and biggest battle before a hushed handful of people in a small room of St. Vincent's hospital—a strange contrast to his earlier battles before screaming thousands in the vast Yankee stadium. He passed away without a farewell to his sister and brother looked on. Tomorrow his beloved Yankees will pay a final tribute. The Yankee-Washington game at Washington will be called off and the play.

THEFT OF TWO AUTOS REPORTED

Theft of two automobiles on the streets last night was reported today to police. Roy McCoy, Chester, reported that his Ford roadster had been stolen while parked in Fourth street near the Carnegie library. The automobile carried West Virginia license number 52-876. The other machine was a 1926 model Overland coach, belonging to James Turner, Glenmoor, which was stolen near Walnut street and St. Clair avenue. Its license number was 476-610.

New Silhouettes Shown As Store Windows Are Unveiled For Opening of East Liverpool's Fall Display Days

Crowds Dazzled by Fashion's Latest Decrees.

Windows in downtown stores were unveiled at 7 o'clock last night, marking the opening of the Retail Merchants' Fall Display Days, to be celebrated today, tomorrow and Saturday. Fashion's creations for fall and winter seasons dazzled record crowds who thronged the streets. Palms, gilded leaves, autumn colored panels and gorgeous draperies formed the background for the store windows. The East Liverpool Fare Refunding association will refund transportation to all out-of-town shoppers who visit the city during the three days. Merchants have arranged for extra sales people who will be on duty to handle the crowds expected here during the week.

Fall Styles Appeal

Relegated to fashions of a by-gone day is the straight, boxlike silhouette that the feminine world welcomed with open arms not very many seasons ago and now seems just as eager to give it up and toss it aside with the same easy nonchalance she does anything she has grown tired of. The new fall collections are without any question of a doubt designed for the sophisticated woman. There is nothing especially youthful about them. Rather they are mature. And yet, they have about them a certain something that appealed. And that is a feeling of being cut on the lines of the human figure. They are molded as to waistline and then spread out to give greater flare in the skirt.

There is a decidedly new trend in the fashions for fall. There are the most complicated themes you could imagine and yet they are worked into the body of the costume in such a manner that they are delightfully informal and free.

Hints on Fall Coats

If you are in the market for a new coat this winter you will have all sorts of fun making your selection. For the coat departments in the city are fairly brimming with grand merchandise that is decidedly new, decidedly Parisian, and for the materials and furs and the beautiful workmanship are not high priced. You will like these flattery feminine flares, if for no other reason than that they are so smartly new and so flattering to the feminine figure.

When the coats are straight lined, fashion has devised various ways and means of making this type of coat especially interesting by breaking up the straight line. In some cases by shoulder or yoke treatments that give a loose feeling about the shoulder, and in others in tiered effects. Belts are placed at a high waistline too, in some of the more youthful coats and often finish at the left side with a ring buckle of silver or some composition in color to match the coat. The uneven hemline so long a dark horse in the daytime coat fashions, has come to the fore in no uncertain manner. In some cases the coat would be

McADOO MAY RUN FOR STATE POST

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — William G. McAdoo, son-in-law of the late President Woodrow Wilson, secretary of the treasury during the Wilsonian regime and several times an aspirant for the Democratic nomination, may be a candidate for governor of California next year.

McAdoo, if he is prevailed upon to run, will enter the gubernatorial fray under the Bourbon standard in an attempt to bring back prestige and power to the Democratic party in state politics, according to reports here.

Baseball In Mourning
A pall has been cast over the forthcoming world series as the baseball realm goes into mourning today for Miller James Huggins, diminutive manager of the New York Yankees, six-time American league pennant winners and three-time world's champions, who died in the metropolis yesterday after a brave fight against the ravages of erysipelas and influenza.

The death of this native Ohioan, who was born and spent his youth in Cincinnati, where he graduated in law and learned the principles of baseball with which he cast his lot after long debate as to whether he should begin practice as a barrister, is mourned wherever the diamond pastime is known—both at home and abroad. For the midget, as the aggressive pilot of the Yankees was popularly termed, ranked with Connie Mack, leader of the 1929 Barnard circuit champions, and John McGraw, of the New York Giants, as a tactician.

From coast to coast, today, the press and men in and about baseball are singing his praises, where as many years ago they were refusing to give him credit for his managerial ability, notwithstanding the splendid record he had made. In eleven years, Huggins captured six pennants and finished out of the first division only once. And this is a record which any baseball chieftain should be proud.

Even before he assumed the leadership of the American league team in the metropolis he had won renown in the profession which he loved. After graduating from the Cincinnati sandlots, he signed a contract in 1899 with the Mansfield, O., club, and in the 30-year interim he had never been out of baseball. As a second baseman he starred with St. Paul in 1900, and went from there to the big league as keystone guardian for the Cincinnati Reds, and finally to the St. Louis Nationals, to become manager and pilot his club to third place, the highest position a Cardinal team ever held in all previous baseball history.

Thus he possessed playing as well as leadership ability, and, too, he developed baseball talent. His most important baseball discovery was Rogers Hornsby, whom he bought for $500 in Texas. And notwithstanding the many stories about trouble between the midget and his players while in New York, they respected his ability and willingly would go the limit for him, as baseball writers attest. When discipline was necessary he enforced it, as Babe Ruth, of home run fame, who paid a $5,000 fine, will testify.

Baseball has lost a man who was a credit to the great game in the death of Miller James Huggins.

Blessings In Disguise
Droughts, killing frosts in growing seasons and excessive moisture, usually considered the three outstanding bugbears of the farmer, who is largely dependent on the weather conditions for his livelihood, sometimes may come as blessing in disguise.

Take, for instance, the large crop of winter wheat which was only slightly injured by drought conditions. Statisticians have gathered figures tending to show that although this year's crop will show a decrease of more than 135 million bushels as compared with last year's there will be a considerable increase in value.

Last year the United States produced approximately 892,749,000 bushels of wheat having a total value to the farmers of $319,728,000. This year, revised estimates place the yield at 767,000,000 bushels with a value, at present indicated prices, of about $964,119,000, an increase of about $54,000,000.

Due to the so-called paradox of value as illustrated by this year's smaller crop of wheat having a higher value than last year's larger crop, farmers of the United States have prospects of increased profits this year if there is no further reduction in the crop and if prices remain near their present levels.

In Canada, however, the outlook for the farmer is not so bright. There, spring wheat predominates, and the crop was seriously affected by drought conditions. The estimated yield of over 550,000,000 bushels has shrunk until today the best estimates place the yield at not to exceed 250,000,000 bushels, as compared with last year's bumper crop of 533,571,700 bushels, which had a value of approximately $426,013,000.

Even with today's increased prices of wheat, the total value of the Canadian crop will fall far short of the high record reached a year ago. In fact the crop of 250,000,000 bushels at present prices, will give the farmers an income of $287,500,000, a loss to them of $138,513,000, as against last year's return.

Getting Rich—First Lesson

John S. Thorne, of New York, opened a savings account in 1819 with the Bank of Savings in that city. On Aug. 15, he deposited $10 and added five dollars more on Aug. 25. Thus was started the oldest savings account in the United States.

No withdrawals had ever been made from the account until Aug. 15, 1929, when his heirs discovered it and were able to take home $2,773.86, an increase of $2,763.86 over the original deposit. Mathematicians may compute it for themselves, if they doubt.

John S. Thorne did not benefit by his $15 deposit in the year 1819, but no one can deny that he took a very direct way to create a small estate out of practically nothing. He never missed the $15, but his heirs would feel acutely the loss of more than $2,500.

Selling away a little bit from day to day is the way to save money. The millionaire's fortune wasn't gathered in one day or one year, nor was the great castle built from one rock. It is the first lesson in acquiring wealth and the hardest to learn.

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

—By Frederic J. Haskin—
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 26.—Here in this Chesapeake Bay country the oystering season has begun again. The working boats, big and little, have had their gears overhauled and have taken to the water for their long season of as arduous work as there is to be found in the world, performed in order that the famous oysters of the bay may be served in palatial dining rooms or at rough oyster bars. Perhaps no greater contrast could be found than that between the gathering of oysters from the beds in the bleak winter days and the serving of them on the half shell at formal dinners.

The season begins somewhat slowly. Although September is an oystering month, it is not until the weather breaks that the demand for them develops strongly and the fleets are out in full force. The oyster men come from all the little fishing towns on Chesapeake bay and its thousand estuaries. Their boats are large and small, some owned or half-owned by big canning and shipping companies, some by individual fishers who get what they can and sell to the shippers. Cambridge is the chief hauling port of the oystermen. It is on the eastern shore of Maryland, a trim little port, reminiscent to some extent of New England fishing ports.

It is possible to own oyster beds by purchase from the state and on these only the owners may gather oysters and they may do so in any way they elect. But on the extensive public beds, the hunting grounds of the real oystermen, there is an equalizing law which has been called one of the most just in the world. No boat may dredge for oysters if it is driven by power of any kind—steam or gasoline. Only sailing vessels may work the public beds. Therefore, whether the oysterman have a big barge with a crew or whether he be a very poor man who works alone or with perhaps one helper, the advantage is the same. Each one depends solely upon the wind for his means of locomotion and the oysters may not be dredged on the deep beds without locomotion.

In a calm, a power boat could work away and drag the beds clean while the sailing vessels lay idle. The man too poor to buy an engine to propel his boat would see the crop being gathered by mechanically propelled vessels while he lay helplessly becalmed. But, under the law, the richest company operating on the bay must take the same chances on getting a wind as the poorest oysterman.

The oysters are gathered by throwing a dredge over the side of the vessel. It is constructed with a straight heavy bar from the ends of which arch another curved bar. Fastened to bottom bar and arched bar is a net of heavy wire mesh. As the boat sails along, the dredge is dragged over the surface of the bottom where the oysters grow and they are gathered into the net. When it is full, it is hauled on board. The larger boats are equipped with power driven winches to hold the dredges for they are very heavy. Back and forth, back and forth over the beds, the big boats and the little boats sail until they have dredged up a load until the hold is full and, perhaps a deck load besides. They eye each other closely as they are near to filling and when one shows signs of getting ready to leave the beds, the others, if they have any sort of a load, follow the example and then there is a race to market—Cambridge, Baltimore, Annapolis and south to Norfolk or Crisfield.

Like the old time clippers who raced out to China or around the Horn to San Francisco or over to England, these oyster skippers bend on every stitch of canvas they have and no matter what the weather, bend every energy to reach port first for the first man in will get the top price; the laggards will find the market glutted.

It would be difficult to find anywhere more skillful seamen than some of the old masters who have been oystering on Chesapeake bay all of their lives. Storms come up with startling suddenness on the broad bay and a dead calm or a light air may turn into a howling gale so quickly that a crew must look sharp to the reefing to prevent the masts being snapped away with scarcely a moment's warning.

But they are great sailors. Most of these skippers started their lives on the bay as hands to help handle the ship or haul the dredges—the smaller ships do not have power driven winches. Mostly they are cautious sailors because they are in charge of the property of others but they can show the most reckless daring.

The Test of Allegiance.
While the Daughters of the American Revolution maintain an organization the light of patriotism will not be dimmed in America. Their policies are American policies. They are warriors at the national gates. They are for peace, but believe with the great first president that it is the part of wisdom in time of peace to prepare for war. They do not raise their boys to be soldiers, but they dedicate their sons to a soldier's work in the day of their country's need. They are also jealous of alien influxes of people from other shores which may serve to threaten the comfort and well-being of citizens established in the nation.

At the Washington meeting the D. A. R. reasserted their policies for national defense by adopting resolutions suggesting measures to congress and advocating requirement of an oath of allegiance from every school teacher.

This action was taken as one of the possible methods of meeting the many disguised forms of insidious propaganda designed to lead the children and youth of America into the fold of communism.

A teacher, in school or in college, who would refuse to take such an oath thereby would at once demonstrate his, or her, unfitness to teach the youths of the country. It is the simple and fundamental test of loyalty to the government and its institutions—to the scheme of representative free government.

Other resolutions urged congress to limit immigration from certain countries and to provide a "navy appropriate to American dignity and power," and to make appropriation for the deportation of thousands of alien criminals.

The work of the D. A. R. contrasts well with the ceaseless efforts of groups and periodicals enlisted in the interest of communism in its many phases. The D. A. R. is constructive, the communist influence are destructive. Worthy of all praise, encouragement and assistance is this truly American body of women, who so ably and persistently labor for the welfare of the government and its people.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The recent house-cleaning in the N. Y. A., the vaudeville organization, and the elevation of Eddie Cantor to the presidency, marks the passing of a supreme dictator who ruled it for 15 years. The dethroned ruler is E. F. Albee. The big sub-rosa power behind the throne is William Fox.

But the greatest victory of all was achieved by an obscure fighter in the background. He is Sime Silverman, the editor of the theatrical weekly Variety. For more than ten years Variety has been snapping at Albee's heels. And in the end its yaps did much toward unhorsing the King.

Sime's stand brought the sheriff and a pretty seal to his door several times. But he fought on. Variety reporters were persona non grata in the Albee offices, and advertising matter was denied the journal. As it was then primarily a vaudeville organ, it was a heavy loss.

The editor of Variety, however, had viscera—rits for what you call it—and never weakened although at times the scramble to meet the payroll was hectic. Strangers who merely admired his courage often came to the rescue. And today Variety prospers.

Albee was a remotely pious figure in the wise cracking world of flip talking vaudevillians. A new Englander, he had the ministerial manner and staid glass dignity of a parson. He is indeed active in church affairs in his home at Mt. Vernon. His recreation is buying old masters.

Enemies charged he used the N. Y. A. for personal exploitation and that lack of his austerity a "publicity hound" tagged at the leash. True or not, his activities used up much printers' ink, but not effectively. In the field of variety he was not a genial figure.

However, he is a multi-millionaire and the loss of his crown will not weigh heavily. With his removal has arisen a sort of Will Hayes of the two-days. This honoree or falls to the widely beloved Pat Casey, who has been knocked about with little recognition for many years.

YOUR HEALTH
An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.
By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

One of the advantages of outdoor life is its good effect upon the general health. Some persons will go outdoors without being urged. Others must be offered some inducement to go out and enjoy the sunshine and fresh air. The lure of an outdoor picnic near shady brook or waterfall, will induce even the tired business man to leave the daily grind for a day.

A picnic used to be a rather trying experience. It was difficult to prepare and carry the food and have it in a tempting condition to serve at lunch time. Now heat-proof paper containers, the thermos jars and bottles, baskets, paper forks and spoons, add to the ease of preparing and serving the picnic lunch.

The mother of the family is grateful for these modern conveniences. The food that is to be served at the picnic is put into one of the thermos jars, which insures its being in good condition when the destination is reached. There are no more sly dishes and leftovers to be packed. The coffee or other beverage may be carried in thermos bottles.

Let us consider the advantages of picnics from a health standpoint. It takes you out into the fresh air and sunshine for, naturally, you couldn't have a picnic and escape these. The drive to and from the selected spot is full of interest. You see things that attract the attention and appeal to the eye. Your mind leaves the worries of the previous week, and you are filled with the beauties of nature. You are happy. All these are health aids.

Having partaken of a bountiful luncheon, whether served from the most modern picnic basket, or from the simplest of homes-made one, you begin to feel that the world is a pretty good place after all. You watch the cows grazing in the nearby field, or calmly chewing their cud by the babbling brooks. You are tempted to lie down and have a nap. You relax in spite of yourself.

Don't sit around the house next Sunday and growl about the trials and tribulations you had all this week and live over those you think you may have next week. After church take the family and go for a picnic! Forget your troubles.

If you have a car, you will enjoy a ride in the country. Perhaps you may have to go by bus, trolley, bicycle, or even on foot. No matter what means of transportation you use, you will get home refreshed and invigorated. You will be assured of a good night's rest, and with your disposition and health quite restored, instead of a blue Monday, you will be better all the week.

It does not pay to give way to the grouchy feeling. Not alone are you unhappy and your neighbors made unhappy, but you are impairing your health. The effects produced by the picnic are conditions which add years to your life.

ANNIE LAURIE'S TIMELY ADVICE

ANNIE LAURIE yourself
DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl in my teens and I have been engaged about five months. The boy is six years my senior.

About two weeks ago I passed him on the street and didn't see him; therefore, I didn't speak. I thought I saw him and was just trying to act conceited and distant. I tried to explain, but he still believes I just didn't want to speak.

Since that time he has only been to see me three times, although he meets me and takes me home from work very often.

He has been going with another girl since we have broken up. He told me once he had a date with this girl, but I acted as though I didn't care. He doesn't want me to go with anyone else.

When he takes me home he doesn't go the nearest route because this girl lives out the same way I do. He goes about a mile out of the way, which makes me think he doesn't want her to see us together.

I have been going with other boys since we have broken up, but I am bored almost to death. I can't have a good time with anyone else. When I am with every other boy I just think of him every minute. I can't forget him for even a minute.

I love this boy dearly, and he still says he loves me. When we are together he seems to be very happy, and I am too, but when we part I stay in my room thinking of him.

If he doesn't come back should I give him the ring or should I wear it as a friendship ring? LONESOME AND BROKEN-HEARTED.

LONESOME AND BROKEN-HEARTED: If this young man can be so irritated and unreasonable about such a minor situation I am afraid he is not revealing qualities that would make him a good husband. If you two can disagree about such a trifling matter, how can you hope to agree upon the big problems that married men and women must face together? You certainly do not seem to understand each other as well as two people who are contemplating matrimony should. Certainly, if he is interested in some other girl, as you say, he is not ready for such an important step.

In any event you should have a frank talk with him and either come to an understanding or break the engagement in a dignified way and give him back his ring.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am in my early teens and I am in love with a fellow five years my senior. He was the first fellow I ever did love.

He has asked me if I would marry him, but about three weeks ago. He has quit me again. Please tell me how I can win him back. Please don't tell me to forget him because it is hard to do.

HILLY: Aren't you rather too young to take this affair so seriously. If the young man has ceased his attentions without any explanation there is really nothing you can do but forget him, as he does not seem to be worthy of your friendship. It may seem hard at first to forget him, but time heals all wounds, and the world, no doubt, holds many pleasant things in store for you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
We are two girls in our teens who are learning to dance, but do not seem to make any progress. We would like to know the tricks about dancing, if there are any, and I think there are.

WONDERING: There are "tricks" to dancing. A good for time and a sense of rhythm is the main requisite. I am sure in time you and your friend will become graceful dancers. A dancing will help you to overcome your self-consciousness by making you graceful and giving you poise. You will find yourself mingling with people in an easy, well-bred, pleasant fashion.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl of nineteen years and very much in love with a young man of twenty-three years. He has asked me several times to marry him. My father will not give his consent. My mother is dead and I love my father very dearly and feel as though I could not marry without his approval. I love this young man as I don't think I can ever love another. He is everything to me. I cannot find father's objection as the young man is very well educated and has a very wonderful mind. He treats me with all the love and consideration any girl could wish for.

Which shall I give up? I love them both. I can't give either up, but what am I to do? I hope you will be able to help a little, as I don't know what to do.

BILLY STAR: Have a talk with your father and ask him to definitely state his objections to your friend. Ask him to describe the type of man to whom he would like to see his little daughter married, and then you may both discover that your friend has many of the desired qualifications.

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

False modesty is a relic of an ancient prejudice. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has cut it away and, in behalf of better health and pure enjoyment, sponsors the fashion of sensible swimming attire.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME

BY JOAN.

Hats! Hats! Never were they more interesting than they are this season. And never have you seen such a startling array as Lammer's are showing for Autumn and Winter wear. Is there anything that touches the heart as well as the head, of woman more than a beautiful hat? A hat is either a friend or foe to face and costume. It will give length or width to your face; it will make your neck look longer or shorter; it will insist on accentuating either the right or wrong features. There isn't a hat made that won't affect your face for better or worse! It behooves one then to choose her hat from a large collection—where there are hats to do the right things for your particular face and a specially trained sales force to see that you find the hat made expressly for you. Lammer's hats fairly sparkle with flattering originality and charm.

Believe me I know where I'd buy my Fall suit and topcoat if I were a man. I'd buy them at Frank Diamond's. Yes Sir, I'll tell you why. First, they have a wonderful assortment of both. The finest woolen materials are featured in topcoats of llama, camel's hair, imported tweeds and many other fabrics. Favored shades in topcoats are tans and grays but there are plenty of fancy mixtures if you prefer them. You'd see raglan and set-in sleeves. And speaking of suits, there are all the correct shades, with peak lapels and notch effects, single and double-breasted ones. Men who place emphasis upon style and good taste will find in these suits and topcoats the effect of custom tailoring without the cost and the quality without the expense.

Nature is in the act of metamorphosis; chameleon-like it turns from green to brown before our very eyes. What a show, what a marvelous panorama! Aren't missing it, are you? Drive out into the country and woodlands. Don't let anything keep you from it. Be sure to drive out on the new Rogers road and see the beauty of "horse-shoe bend"—making sure first that you have the oil changed in your car. Have it lubricated thoroughly at Milliron's Grease Palace—then nose the car into their filling station and fill your tank with their famous Ethyl. Fill it to the top, you won't find another such filling station in the country you know. Cars filled with Ethyl Gas and Mid-continent oil run smoothly, are quick on the pick-up, never knock and travel farther to the gallon. Need more be said?

And that drive will be even more glorious if instead of returning home and finding nothing prepared for the evening meal we peep into Frigidaire and see a temptingly cool vegetable salad and there in the freezing tray a delicious dessert, apricot bavarian cream, if you please. You've made it of course if you own a Frigidaire. It's among the favorites. Another grand feature of Frigidaire, you can prepare salads and dessert hours even days in advance of the time they are needed thereby removing all that last minute fussing. So many women dislike cooking. If their husbands were wise they'd see to it immediately that a Frigidaire be installed in the home. The Crockery City Ice & Products Co. has a refrigerator that will meet your requirement at a price within the extent of your budget.

If you've never known the joy that comes in a wee tiny bottle of perfume made by Lenthier, you're more to be censured than pitied. You have used various odors and by this time have your favorite. If you were told that Lenthier surpassed them all, that its fragrance didn't disappear within a few hours but just lingered and lingered... a subtle elusive, exquisite scent—wouldn't you feel you had been missing the very best? Just drop into Carnahan's Drug Store and ponder over the new Lenthier's visits of fragrance. All Lenthier's preparations have an air of elegance and charm about them. You buy interior perfumes for very little less. Why deprive yourself of the pleasure and happy satisfaction that these will give you?

We saw the new hostess gowns and pajama ensembles at Ogilvie's and we just can't wait 'til you see them too. They're lovelier and more luxurious than ever. Some are fashioned of silks in two-tone effects—others of light weight flannels (just an ideal weight for the chilly nights ahead). All who see them are delighted with them. Mothers are buying these lounging pajamas to send to daughters attending college. They'll want to wear them when the girls gather for the "spread." Some have plain colorful trousers and brightly colored blouses. Others—but there—you'll want to SEE the others, so I'll just say "goodnight."

CHANEY PICTURE ON STATE BILL

The surge and thunder of a great railroad is contrasted with delicate romance and a gorgeous love story in Lon Chaney's latest starring vehicle, "Thunder," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sound-synchronized epic of the steel trail, now playing at the State theater.

Amid the runs of limited trains, the spectacular settings of huge railroad yards, and with the Mississippi floods as a thrill, the love tale of a boy and girl, and a still more human story of the love of a father and his two sons, is worked out into an enthralling evening's entertainment. The picture has thrills and laughs, tears and bewilderment, all woven into a blend of engrossing entertainment.

Chaney, used to bizarre roles, has one in this picture that is a vivid contrast. He plays "Grumpy" Anderson, grizzled old veteran of the throttle, piloting his crack limited through the snows, staging a thrilling run to the rescue in the flood, and living and breathing the traditions of the road. His love for his engine, his belief that no man is any good unless he's a railroad man—all these are strikingly true to life. Incidentally he had to wear a moustache—for the first time in years—because old time engineers usually do!

Phyllis Haver plays the heroine, an actress who tempts the old engineer's fireman son, James Murray, to leave the road for a "white-collar" job, which almost breaks the old man's heart. In the end it is her love and understanding that returns the son to the railroad and to his father, George Rogers as Jim.

"Rio Rita" is a show that leaves a good taste in the mouth.

There is a men's chorus that is kept too much in the background. They should be allowed to make more "whoopie."

Of course there is a plot to the tuneless production but it does not worry one much by it being intricate. The skeleton centers around Jim's love for the gringo girl, Rio Rita. Her brother is Duryea plays the other son, a brakeman, who is killed on duty, a tragic sidelight on the perils of railroad life.

"RIO RITA" WINS PLAUDITS HERE

Replete with excellent singing and extraordinary dancing and presented by a cast in keeping with the high standard of the re-production George W. Wintz's "Rio Rita," a musical romance of the Rio Grande, took the Ceramic theater by storm last night when it opened the legitimate show season.

A crowd that taxed the capacity of the fourth street playhouse was thrilled by the massiveness of the offering which fulfilled expectations resulting from advance notices of its sensational run on Broadway.

It would be difficult to select any of the cast for special mention, for rare judgment had been used in the selection of the principals. Of course, it would be unfair to omit Marybeth Connolly, in the title role; Sebastian Meza, Ellen Eckler, a dancer as well as accomplished actress, and Arthur Rogers as Jim.

"Rio Rita" is a show that leaves a good taste in the mouth. There is a men's chorus that is kept too much in the background. They should be allowed to make more "whoopie."

Of course there is a plot to the tuneless production but it does not worry one much by it being intricate. The skeleton centers around Jim's love for the gringo girl, Rio Rita. Her brother is mixed up in a bandit gang while her lover is the personification of law and order. A fat old Mexican loves her, too, and schemes to wreck her romance with Jim. But even bandits and family bonds, plus rotund Mexican villain, cannot cramp Dan Cupid's style. In the end love is all "cafeteria" as little Ellen says—serve yourself.

Intertwined with the basic romance are the amorous adventures of Dolly, the cabaret dancer, played by Ellen Eckler and her Chick Bean, by Sebastian Meza. Jimmie Lee gets a share in the love-light, too.

"FALL OF EVE" CERAMIC BILL

Seldom has there been such a brilliant array of comedy talent as there is in the Columbia all-talking production, "The Fall of Eve," which opens a three-day engagement at the Ceramic theater today.

The picture is a typical farce, abounding with comedy situations. The dialogue was written by Fredric and Fanny Hutton, ace writing team, famous for their successful comedies.

Among the players are Patsy Ruth Miller, Ford Sterling, Gertrude Astor, Arthur Rankin, Jed Prouty, Betty Farrington, Fred Kelsey and Hank Mann. Patsy Ruth Miller, the sprightly delineator of light comedy roles, who has recently appeared in "So This is Paris" and "We Americans," plays the title role, that of a bright and witty little stenographer who knows how to handle her men.

In another featured role is Ford Sterling, veteran of Sennett comedies and star of the late sensation-comedy wow, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." Other roles are played by Fred Kelsey, the classic "dumb detective" of the screen. In "The Fall of Eve" he will again provoke laughter as a slow-witted detector of crime. Much of the comedy is handled by Hank Mann, one of the original Keystone Hops of Mack Sennett comedies.

FORMER MAYOR GOES TO CELL

Athens Man Given 18 Months in Penitentiary.

ATHENS, O., Sept. 26.—(INS)—Alex N. Moore, former Athens mayor and defeated Republican candidate for lieutenant governor in the last election, was today sentenced to serve 18 months in the Ohio state penitentiary on embezzlement charges.

Imposition of sentence by Judge L. G. Worstell took place in the same courtroom where Moore had formerly served two terms as clerk of courts.

The former mayor was sentenced on the specific charge of diverting a $100 fine in his court to his own use.

State examiners found a deficit in his books when they made an examination early this spring, after Moore had resigned from his office and left town.

He had been twice elected mayor, and during his terms, according to the examiners, he is alleged to have embezzled $900.

After he was sentenced, the Athens county sheriff took him into custody. He had been free under bond. About an hour later, Moore, guarded by deputies, left Athens for the penitentiary at Columbus, where they are expected to arrive some time this afternoon.

MRS. HOOVER ELUDES GUARDS

First Lady Goes Shopping in New York.

By David P. Sontner. (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent). NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, first lady of the nation, slipped away from her motorcycle escorts and guards of honor today to go shopping.

What she purchased and how much she bought may never be known.

The wife of the president planned to return to Washington this afternoon. It was her initial journey to New York alone as the wife of the nation's executive.

She came here to aide the Girl Scouts' movement in its campaign to raise $3,000,000 for its five-year development program. And she brought the good news that the American relief association had voted $500,000 for the Girl Scouts' national fund.

After formally opening an art exhibition for the benefit of the fund, Mrs. Hoover broke a precedent by permitting herself to be interviewed.

She didn't call it an interview, but merely "a few minutes' chat about the Girl Scouts."

Mrs. Hoover, honorary president of the Girl Scouts' council, was dressed in a regulation green scout uniform.

TRUCK DRIVER DIES IN CRASH

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 26.—(INS)—Everett Muncy, 37, a truck driver, is dead, and Harvey Taylor, 23, and Morris Lennell, 23, are suffering from serious hurts, as the results of a collision between two trucks at Lawrenceville, near here, yesterday. Lennell and Taylor were occupants of Muncy's truck. All were employed by the Ohio Edison company here.

Shipbuilder Denies Lobby.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(INS)—A vigorous denial that the Transoceanic corporation maintained any lobby or lobbyists in Washington to promote the four-days-to-Europe steamship service was made today by Lawrence R. Willard, New York shipbuilder, who was called as today's chief witness in the senate's investigation of the activities of William B. Shearer.

MRS. PANTAGES FACES PRISON

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—(INS)—Mrs. Alexander Pantages today faces the penalty of one to 10 years imprisonment in the penitentiary for the death of Juro Rokumoto, Japanese gardener.

The jury of five women and seven men last night returned a verdict of manslaughter after more than eight hours' deliberation. Mrs. Pantages, wife of the millionaire theater operator, was brought to trial on a charge of second-degree murder after the automobile she was driving crashed into the car of Rokumoto, hurling his family into the street and fatally injuring him.

The state charged that she was intoxicated when it occurred.

HOOVER, BORAH BREAK WIDENS

Senator Challenges President on Tariff Views.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(INS)—The "break" between President Hoover and Senator William E. Borah, his leading supporter in the last campaign, was widened this afternoon when the Idaho senator challenged the president from the floor of the senate to state his views on the industrial schedules in the new tariff bill.

Taking direct issue with the president, Borah first condemned the flexible tariff provision as a "sinful waste of time and money." Then while asserting the right of the president to speak in defense of the flexible tariff, Borah demanded that Mr. Hoover similarly speak his views on tariff rates to the country.

"I ask from the floor of the senate that the president advise the senate and the country," said Borah, "as he did upon the flexible tariff provision, whether he approves the industrial schedules of this bill."

Borah asserted the flexible tariff provision had failed to perform the function which congress intended when it was enacted seven years ago. That function, he said, was to equalize economic differences between agriculture and industry and to reduce war time tariff duties. He said the tariff commission had failed to carry out either of these tasks.

Borah asked that the president to answer three questions. These were:

- 1—Whether he approved the industrial schedules.
- 2—Whether he approves the agricultural rates, and
- 3—Whether he feels the new bill carries out his pledges and the party's pledges in the last campaign.

AFGHAN KING REPORTED SLAIN

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(INS)—Unconfirmed reports were received here from Calcutta, India, this afternoon that Amir Habibullah (Bacha Sakao), the man who rose from "water carrier" and bandit chief to king of Afghanistan, has been assassinated.

It was stated in official quarters no advices have been received to confirm the reports.

Recent advices from Peshawar stated unrest was increasing in Afghanistan owing to Habibullah's inability to raise money, and a counter revolution was threatened.

CHINESE REBELS MOVE TO SOUTH

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(INS)—Gen. Tsao Wan Shu, of the Nationalist (Nanking) government forces, has been ordered posthaste to Ichang with 16,000 troops to give battle to the counter-revolutionaries who are moving southward, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hongkong this afternoon.

Six southern Chinese military chiefs, including the Cantonese leader, Gen. Chang Chai Tong, are reported by the Exchange Telegraph, to have allied themselves with the revolting "Ironside" brigade, taking the field against the Nanking government.

REPORTS FROM KIWANIS PLANS STOCK MARKET TOUR OCT. 10

By W. S. Cousin, I. N. S. Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Wall Street was relieved today that the much discussed and long-awaited raise in the Bank of England rate to 6 1/2 per cent had finally been made, removing one more of the market's "wet blankets" and showing conclusively that the London bankers were determined to protect the gold reserves of the big bank.

Only 450,000 shares of stock changed hands in the first half hour, an unusually small volume for a day on which such an important event is announced to the world. First prices were from 1 to 3 points in both directions as compared with Wednesday's close, with the bulk of market leaders travelling upward. Simmons advanced 3 points, American Can a point, Republic Steel 1 1/2 and Union Carbide a point. Adams Express jumped 20 points and Commercial Solvents was up 10 points in the first period.

The bears turned their attention to the most stocks in the second hour and it required comparative little selling to force General Motors, Chrysler, Nash, Studebaker, Reo, Graham Paige and other well-known motor shares to the lowest prices on the present move, and in some cases to the low of the year. Chrysler, which has held steadily around 62, broke below 60 for the first time since its sensational jump to 135 earlier in the year. General Motors dropped off to 63 1/4 on announcement of a 10 per cent shrinkage in sales in August and a shrinkage in dealer distribution.

PEACOCK SANE, ALIENIST SAYS

Dr. Gregory Hits Defense in "Torch Murder."

By James L. Kilgallen, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent. COURT HOUSE, WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Earle Peacock, the so-called "psychopathic personality" was of a sound mind when he strangled his bride, Dorothy, on the night of April 21, last, the first anniversary of their wedding. He "knew what he was doing."

This testimony was given today by a noted alienist, Dr. Menas Gregory, head of the psychopathic department of Bellevue hospital, New York City. Dr. Gregory was called to the stand by the prosecution to refute statements of two defense alienists who testified Wednesday that Peacock was a "psychopathic personality," who suffered an "emotional storm" at the time he was choking his wife and therefore could not distinguish right from wrong.

Dr. Gregory was questioned by District Attorney Frank H. Coyne. Q. Was Peacock sane at the time he was killing his wife?

A. He was in sound mind at the time. He was not insane.

Good Will Visits Will be Made in County.

Plans for a "good will" tour of Columbiana county, to be made under the direction of the Kiwanis club Thursday, October 10, were completed at a noon luncheon in the grill room of the Travelers' hotel today.

The club members will be joined by many local business men. The party, which is expected to number about 150, will be accompanied by the East Liverpool City band and a vocal quartet.

In the afternoon the tourists will visit Hanoverton, New Kensington, East Rochester, Millport, Summitville and Salineville. A joint meeting with the Salineville Kiwanians will be held at 6 p. m., the final stop of the tour.

Reports submitted showed a total of 107 persons who have signified their intentions of making the trip. Committees which will have charge of transportation, entertainment, music, publicity and other phases of the tour were appointed by Olen Dawson, tour chairman.

Delegates from the local club to the district Kiwanis convention, which will be held at Marietta next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will be uninstructed. Eight clubs have written to the local club asking support of candidates for district governor.

YOU have heard repeatedly of Mohammedans murdering Chinese in distant parts of China. Today's news puts the shoe on the other foot.

Dispatches tell of the massacre of 3,000 Mohammedans by Chinese authorities.

Invited to a conference the Mohammedans were separated from their wives, then executed by the Chinese authorities.

The Moslems are said to have died "stolically."

MEXICO is electing a president. Dispatches from Mexico City announce 130 dead, in fights at the polls.

Mexicans may kill each other, to a limited extent, on election day, but Mexico knows enough to close gambling houses and forbid slot gambling machines.

Some day this country will obey the laws against gambling, at race tracks and elsewhere.

Not that gambling is a sin, but that it is a substitute for effort. When a young fool gambles in a day 10 times what he can earn in a week, his real work seems not worth while—and usually it is not worth while.

Reports submitted showed a total of 107 persons who have signified their intentions of making the trip. Committees which will have charge of transportation, entertainment, music, publicity and other phases of the tour were appointed by Olen Dawson, tour chairman.

Delegates from the local club to the district Kiwanis convention, which will be held at Marietta next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will be uninstructed. Eight clubs have written to the local club asking support of candidates for district governor.

You must personally experience this new performance if you would be abreast of the times. Only by demonstration can you learn fully of the great new performance possibilities ushered in by the many characteristic new Chrysler features such as these:

MULTI-RANGE

—the new type of Chrysler gear shift by means of which the driver is able to dominate any modern traffic situation whether on the congested city streets, on the open highway, or in the mountains. Nothing new to learn. Makes driving a joy; shifting, easy—sure—smooth. Engine, gas and oil are conserved while every previous limit of performance is far extended.

DOWN-DRAFT

—the new type of carburetion principle which literally reverses previous fueling practice, with incredible gains in power, smoothness, surety, economy and accessibility. Not merely a gravity manifold, but the same scientific method of carburetion so successfully employed in many recent astonishing aviation endurance flights.

ARCHITONIC

—the new principles and methods of Architonic body construction give the new Chrysler bodies their aristocratic smartness and style, their "dreadnought" strength, permanent silence and restful riding qualities. Actually scores of such basic betterments await you in the new Chryslers!

City Water Supply Increased By Rain

Prospects of "Dry" Reservoir Diminish; Pumps, However, Being Kept Ready for Operation.

WELLSVILLE, O., Sept. 26.—With the depth of the water in the city reservoir in Little Yellow creek increased by at least three inches as a result of last night's rain, with additional rainfall expected, prospects of a "dry" reservoir similar to that of a year ago when it became necessary to operate pumps, were diminishing today, according to Service-Safety Director George E. Imbrie.

Depth of water in the reservoir was rated today at 27 feet, three inches, providing a supply for approximately 25 days.

In the event, however, that there is no rain of any considerable quantity within the next 10 days, city officials will prepare for the operation of the old pump station which were used prior to the construction of the present system.

NEW YORK, September 26.—This year of grace—but not much—in heavyweight boxing will attempt to die with at least its house slippers on tonight with a fifteen round finale between Tommy Loughran and Jack Sharkey at the Yankee stadium, the event being 1929's gift to posterity. It will end the first outdoor season of the modern age in which the million-dollar heavyweight title has no owner and, so far as anyone knows, this parlous state of affairs still will prevail when the last clench is unraveled this evening.

PHILLIE SLUGGERS IN ACTION

Klein Gets Two Homers; O'Doul Gains In Batting Race.

"Chuck" Klein and Lefty O'Doul, "slugging stars" of the Phillies who are scheduled to appear here Oct. 10, during the world's series in an exhibition game between two local teams, yesterday blasted out a flock of hits as the Quakers combine copped a pair from the Robins, 10 to 9 and 8 to 5.

The Phillies copped the opener on home runs in the ninth inning by Klein and Don Hurst.

In this game Klein laced out his 40th round trip swat and then added his first in the second.

O'Doul slapped out his 31st homer in the second game and, all told, turned in four hits in nine times up. As a result he gained on Babe Herman of the Robins in the race for the 1929 hitting crown of the National circuit. Herman got two in five attempts.

POOR BABE CAN'T REST IN PEACE

'Kid' Home Run Hitters Clatter at His Heels.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Cases to be pitted—No. 331: Babe Ruth. No sooner does old George Herman ease himself out in front and settle down for a little nap than the yapping youngsters come galloping up to disturb his peace. A few days ago it seemed as if the Babe's home run crown was secure for another year—now it appears that unless he slips out of his slump the crown may adorn more classical brows.

For Mel Ott, Giant white hope, went off on a spree and ran his total to 42. Yesterday, as the Phillies trimmed the Robins twice, 10-9 and 8-5, Chuck Klein blasted a couple for 41.

Making their farewell appearance at the Polo grounds for the year, the Braves bowed to the Giants, 8 to 4. It was announced that Dutch Henry, Giant Southpaw had been released by the waiver route to the White Sox.

Al Gabrowski, Club rookie flinger, chalked up his 25th consecutive scoreless inning by blanking the Reds, 8 to 0.

Pittsburgh and Chicago were not scheduled.

Despite their grief over the death of their leader, Miller Huggins, the Yanks trimmed the Red Sox, 11 to 10, after eleven innings to clinch second place. A Philadelphia scouting party watched the past champions perform.

After allowing but two hits up until the ninth inning, Earl Whitehill weakened and the Browns scored twice to trim the Tigers, 3 to 2.

Glen Myatt's home run with two on in the ninth gave the Indians a 9 to 7 win over the White Sox.

Philadelphia and Washington were not scheduled.

NEW GRIDIRON BLEACHERS HERE 1000 More Seats Are Provided

Will be Erected for Holy Name Game Saturday.

The East Liverpool Athletic association's bleachers—4,000 seat capacity—arrived in East Liverpool this morning.

And they'll be up in time to provide accommodations Saturday for that many cash customers who prefer to take their athletics in a position other than on their arches.

The bleachers were shipped the first of the week from the Wayne Metal company, Wayne, Pa., and reached the Walnut street freight yards this morning.

They were to be taken during the day to the Standard Oil company siding adjoining Patterson Field for unloading.

In order to facilitate the handling of the shipment, the board of education has granted permission for the removal of two sections of the wire fence surrounding Patterson Field, and Harry Fenton, caretaker, will supervise the operation.

High school students and members of the athletic association will do overalls late this afternoon and transport the bleachers and their supports, which come in sections, to the playing field.

Association officials said today that the bleachers will likely be erected on the east side of the playing field, in position for the game with Cleveland Holy Name here Saturday.

COLUMBUS CLUB SLIPS NOTCH

Indianapolis broke the fourth position tie in the American Association pennant race when it split a double-header, while Columbus dropped one to Kansas City.

The Hoosiers took a 6 to 3 victory from Minneapolis in the first game but lost the second game by 8 to 0 score. One win was enough to send them into the lead, however, and today the team basks in the fourth berth.

Meanwhile, Columbus had allowed the first position Cowboys to take an 8 to 2 decision. The Senators simply couldn't hit the pill consistently. The 11 hits they pounded out brought in only two runs. Wamouth, the Blues' pitcher, was very successful in keeping the hits scattered.

Toledo climbed out of the cellar yesterday and Milwaukee, which has all the qualifications of a losing team, was consigned to the vacancy. The Mudhens took a 5 to 2 victory from the Brewers. Milwaukee's plight is not hopeless as it is only one-half game behind.

Louisville met St. Paul in a double header and took the first contest by an 18 to 9 score, and the second game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness, when the score was two-all.

BOWLING GREEN ELEVEN IS SET

BOWLING GREEN, O., Sept. 26.—The Bowling Green Falcons, who were champions of the North-west Ohio conference last season, went through a hard scrimmage yesterday afternoon in preparation for the Baldwin Wallace encounter here Saturday.

With a switch in their lineup, Preppel, former Ohio State frosh from Napoleon, was barking the signals, with Lowell, of Bowling Green, and Treese, of Arlington, at halves and Young, of Napoleon, at full back. The following forwards are expected in the Falcons' lineup Saturday: Evans, of Fostoria, Chapman, of Bowling Green, or Ostrander, of Bradner, at ends; Sheffer, of Pennersville, Traub, of Lorain or Travis, of Napoleon, at tackles; Bortel, of Bowling Green and Thourout, of Stryker, guards, and Stevenson, Bowling Green, center.

CHARLEROI HAS VACANT DATE

Years Make Eddie Collins Just Spectator at Series

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—There will be the usual cheer for the hero and the jeer for the goat but the sob of the 1929 world series—it isn't official unless there is a catch somewhere in somebody's throat—will be reserved for one man. It will be reserved for the picture of Edward Trowbridge Collins sitting on the bench and, for the first time, watching others do the things he once did so well.

Collins is realizing an ambition that has been nursed secretly since those dark days of 1919 when the Black Sox of Chicago played him and other honest members of the ball club for a lot of chumps.

He wanted to get in another world series before he passed into the limbo of baseball's forgotten and he is getting his wish—too late. Collins will be in this series between the Athletics and Cubs but not of it. Aye, the great leaver, has made him a virtual spectator.

It Might Have Been.

If the wish had been fulfilled any time between 1919 and 1926, Collins not only would have been in the impending world series but very much of it. He has played in six of them since 1910 and, while the records do not altogether support the contention, he has the reputation of being one of the greatest stars of all series play.

Actually, he has seen both greatness and mediocrity, these strangely enough coming alternately in his world series record.

For example, his first appearance in the big act was in 1910 when the Cubs and Athletics last met. He hit .429, for the high water mark of his world series career and played remarkable ball at second base. In 1911 against the Giants, he again was almost exemplary, in the field but hit only .286. This was acceptable but no more than that. Incidentally, it was his error in the ninth inning that blew the first game behind Chief Bender.

The 1913 series with the Giants saw him at his best again, with an average of .421. Then he fell to .214, his lowest series average, in the 1914 tragedy with the Braves. In some ways, his 1917 performance with the White Sox against the Giants was his best. He fielded sensationally, got nine hits in twenty-two times at bat for an average of .409 and was the hero of that famous or infamous race across the plate with Heinie Zimmerman.

Hailed As Star.

At this juncture, Collins was hailed as the best world series performer of history. It remained only for 1919 to discourage this sentiment.

Its purity makes it safe for the children

New Cage Project Needed

Proposed Auditorium Would Answer Seat Problem.

AFTER enjoying the temporary "luxuries" coincident with a seating capacity of 1,000 or more at the tabernacle auditorium all last winter, East Liverpool basketball fans can not help but view with gloom the prospect of trying to jam their way into the high school gymnasium for the coming season's cage contests.

As a result, they're awaiting anxiously the outcome of plans for the proposed $150,000 auditorium which, according to sponsors of the project, is right "on the one yard line" at the present time.

Officers of the auditorium company who have been toiling diligently right along for the last several weeks, quietly and unostentatiously, have got the project almost in shape for the financial campaign which will be conducted by Edgar McKay, Pittsburgh stock salesman.

The legal phases of the preparations to date have been numerous.

The proposition as a whole has been soundly investigated by the state securities commission and the stock, according to officers, has been approved. Several details, which merely are details but, nevertheless essential in meeting legal requirements, remain to be ironed out.

In the event that all goes well, the company will "step on it" in an effort to get the building up in time for the basketball season.

Architects say that the structure can be erected within two months. By reason of the fact there are no complicated architectural designs to contend with, contractors will be able to work more rapidly than ordinarily.

The proposed auditorium, then, appears the only outlet for high school basketball.

Many of last year's crowds at as well as, are constantly growing, high school games taxed the tabernacle seating even to capacity. Fans will turn out for the games answer to the problem.

Holy Name High Pastor Native of Ceramic City

The Rev. Dr. William A. Scullen, E. L. H. S. Graduate, May Accompany Cleveland Gridders Here Saturday.

WHEN Cleveland Holy Name high school's football squad and its band of followers invaded the Ceramic City Saturday afternoon for the annual clash with the Pottery, the occasion will provide an opportunity for the Rev. Dr. William A. Scullen, pastor of Holy Name high, and native of East Liverpool, to renew East Liverpool acquaintanceships.

The Rev. Father Scullen was born and reared in East Liverpool. He lived in Monroe street in the Fourth ward or "Irishtown" district of the municipality during his youth and while he was going to school here preparatory to launching upon his career in the priesthood.

His mother is Mrs. Hannan Scullen and she lives with him now in Cleveland.

The Rev. Father Scullen graduated from East Liverpool high school as an honor student and as one of the youngest seniors to be awarded a sheepskin. He completed his high school work around the age of 16 years.

After that he studied in this country and in Rome prior to his ordination as a priest.

He is recognized as one of the outstanding figures of the Cleveland diocese of the Catholic church. For a number of years he was secretary to former Bishop Farley. He also served as chancellor of the diocese for a number of years.

On a number of occasions, the Rev. Father Scullen has visited in East Liverpool. He was the principal speaker at a Carroll council, Knights of Columbus, banquet a few years ago, and in this capacity he is sought frequently, inasmuch as he is a polished orator.

PLAY McKINLEY IN NOVEMBER, 1930; DECKER HAS EYE ON HOME CONTESTS

CANTON McKINLEY high school footballers, a pretty tough bunch of birds to be served up so early on the Pottery's annual gridiron menu, will remain on the Blue and White schedule next year, but—not for an opener.

Faculty Manager J. M. Decker today announced that the Cantonians have been scheduled for the first Saturday in November, 1930, at Lakeside stadium.

And while the Peabody coached machine is tough enough at any time during the season, the game will not come as an ordeal on a comparatively inexperienced and untried eleven such as the case has been in the last two campaigns.

If they have reasonable assurance of being able to see them with some degree of personal comfort.

The proposed auditorium specifies a seating capacity of 2,000 or more which is more than sufficient to meet all present needs. High school, and other athletics, as well as, are constantly growing, and a floor such as the auditorium would provide, appears the only answer to the problem.

During a trial in Hartford, England, recently, Judge Crawford told a railway man's widow who had had spent $155.50 on her husband's funeral that it was "monstrous" to spend one-tenth of her capital in this way.

UNCLE POM

By Henry C. Rowland

A sparkling, swift-moving mystery romance

SYNOPSIS.

Pomeroy Penfold, a wealthy American widower, nearing 50, loves to travel and visit friends. When the story opens he is a guest at the chateau of his sister, Alicia, and her husband, the Comte de Rennes. He is disturbed by the sight of an intruder—a man in a yachting costume—who appears on the estate, and stares rudely at Maia, the count's lovely 20 year old daughter by a first marriage. Maia admits having met the man in America, and says his name is Captain Seagrave.

That afternoon Kirby Colton, handsome scapegrace son of an American bishop, an old friend of the Penfold family, calls at the chateau unexpectedly, and is invited by the count to spend the night. He, too, has met Maia in America. The count surprises Uncle Pom by telling him that Maia loves him, and indicating the marriage would please him. Maia overhears them, and confirms her father's remarks.

Later she confesses that both Kirby and Colton are erstwhile suitors. Knowing the two hate each other, Uncle Pom fears a clash, and goes in search of Kirby. He is attacked from behind, knocked unconscious, and robbed of a belt containing priceless diamonds. That night a prowler in his room tries to choke him, then escapes. Maia suspects Seagrave of both attacks—he is always in financial difficulties—but Kirby astonishes every one by offering her a shot amiss. The agent killed was a crook and a grafter, proved later to have been operating as a bootlegger from behind the excise officer's authority, and was due to be tried and convicted, and all the rest of it. A thorough bad lot.

"That's true enough," Kirby said morosely, "but all the same there's no open season on those birds."

"Does Maia know all about it?" Mr. Penfold asked.

"Yes, sir. She left next morning and sailed that night from New York. But she read all about the rotten business on the train."

"And had he hanging over her all this time since," Mr. Penfold cried agitatedly. "I wondered at the tragic look I've caught sometimes on her face. Poor girl."

He turned suddenly on Seagrave. "And now, you unutterable cad, you come here with your dirty threats to expose her, give in your filthy deposition, and expose her to all the dirt of notoriety and extradition and trial for the killing of this beastly crook, knowing as you do that it would ruin her whole future life." His voice like his face, grew suddenly thick, turgid.

For the first time since his injury he became conscious of sharp pain in his wounded head.

Seagrave said coldly, "Not unless you force me to it. I'm not asking money, and don't intend to. I'm not ever asking her to marry me—yet."

All I demand is that Maia shall marry you or anybody else unless I've had a chance to get on my feet and to try to show her that I'm really the man for her, when all's said and done."

"I'd rather see her behind prison bars," Mr. Penfold said. "Not that there's the slightest danger for her, but there is for you. I believe you framed the whole rotten business. Not only worked on Maia's ignorance, but tipped off the second-in-command that there was a high-powered private car due over that part of the road with a load of liquor."

"I've believed that all along," Kirby said. "It has all the makings of a dirty frameup."

Seagrave fastened him with his cold pale eyes. A casual observer would have said that he had been holding in his savage temper with a marvellously strong hand. "You'd have quite a job to prove that, Colton."

"Perhaps," Mr. Penfold said. "And permit me to point out, Seagrave, that you may have quite a hard job to prove before a French tribunal that you did not strike me down yesterday and rob me of my money belt with jewels and money. Remember that here in France the legal procedure of criminal cases is to place the onus of the charge on the defendant. You would have to prove yourself to be innocent, and with your reputation and present position that may not prove so easy."

Seagrave smiled. "I'll take a chance. This thing is entirely up to you, sir. Though I say it as shouldn't, no procureur de la republique is going to indict a man that wears this"—he touched the red ribbon in his lapel—"merely because he happens to be in the general latitude of the crime. Even if he did, the court would call it a crime passionnel."

"Scarcely, with the theft of about two and a half million francs' worth of gems," Mr. Penfold said dryly, "and your yacht held here in libel against bills paid with worthless checks."

Seagrave's self-control slipped a little. "How the devil could I have known about your bally jewels in your ruddy money belt?" he demanded. "A multimillionaire like you isn't supposed to be packing gems on his belt like a lousy diamond digger up the Mazzaruni. And if I'd seen fit to pat you on the head with a rock, d'you suppose I'd have hung round to render first aid and found you were a mobilized jeweler's shop? Let's talk sense, man."

"How did you know I was struck on the head with a stone?" Mr. Penfold asked.

"I don't know it. But you accuse me of hitting you over the head with something, and I don't go for a walk on the beach with a gas pipe or spanner in my pocket. The whole silly business looks to me to be the work of somebody who knew your curious habits and in whom you trusted."

It looked that way to Mr. Penfold. There was a convincing quality in Seagrave's savage impatience. As if quick to appreciate his advantage, he went on contemptuously, "If you're trying to frame up a little blackmail of your own, then you'd best hit on something that'll hold water. This stuff is a washout. Rigged up to blanket me, I'd say—like Maia's engagement to marry you. Any port in a storm is right."

He could not have said anything to take Mr. Penfold more aback. Seagrave, watching him intently, was as quick to see the crevice in his armor as a seagull to see that in the carapace of a crab bruised by the surf and washed onto the beach.

He struck at it in similar fashion, "If the truth were known, I'd lay long odds she never thought of getting herself engaged to you until I loomed up over her horizon yesterday like a black squall. Then she up stick and ran for the shelter of the strong arms. Don't blame her a bit. It's money, not muscle, counts nowadays, unless you happen to be a pug. She didn't tell me that she was engaged, but that she was about to be engaged. Fast worker, Maia. A lot you know her. You never will know her. She's not the tender child you think. She needs a strong hand at the helm, and lacking that she's going to get wrecked."

"Not by you, Seagrave," Kirby said. "The trouble with you near pirates is you think it's still the year 1628. They've changed all that."

"They haven't changed the women so you'd notice it, except in rig. Maia belongs to my epoch, underneath, and she jolly well knows it. Or if she doesn't I can soon prove it to her, given half a chance."

"Then we shall see that you don't get the chance, you scoundrel," Mr. Penfold said violently. Seagrave transferred his bleak pale glare from Kirby to Mr. Penfold. "Then I shall live up to that name and wreck her, as I promised you. Then I would be kinder to her in the end than to have her marry a middle aged man with no thought about his digestion and his palate. Maia isn't made for that. Marry you? Might as well mate to an Angouleme pate-de-frole-gras goose waddler round in his spritsail yard. Well, there's my ultimatum. Maia can give me my chance or stand trial for the bumping off of this rotten grafter of an excise officer. And as for you, Colton, if you want to square yourself for what looks mighty like an even dirtier bit of graft than any self-respecting pirate would despise, you know where to find me. I'm not apt to beat it with my hooker held in libel."

He arose in his alert way, saluted sardonically, and strode round the house to where his hired car was waiting before the perron. Copyright, 1929, by Henry C. Rowland.

WORK ON BRIDGE

Begin California Hollow Concrete Job Monday.

Columbiana county will officially open the East Liverpool-East Palestine and the Rogers-Negley roads to through traffic on Saturday night, it was announced today by County Surveyor Lloyd Kirk.

Kirk, however, explained that berms on the two roads have not been worked up. Neither have guard rails been placed, and for this reason drivers should exercise caution.

On the East Palestine-East Liverpool road, the only unimproved section is at Fredericktown where a concrete bridge is now being built over Beaver creek.

The new span at Negley is finished.

Concrete will be poured Monday on the California Hollow section of the East Liverpool - Youngstown highway. Four-day concrete will be first poured at the sub-station end of the road.

Charged with committing a fraud of 5,000 francs in Switzerland, twenty-year-old Willie Lindemann was recently arrested in Sydney, N. S. W., just as he was landing.

Complying with the request of General Lord Horne, who commanded the British First Army in France in the World war, that he have no military funeral, his coffin was carried on a farm cart to the grave at Wick, England, recently.

England is worried over statistics proving that it is falling behind in the air, latest figures showing that it had 2,200 miles of air routes while Germany had 18,000, America 16,500 and France 12,500.

Baby 6 Days Old Had Eczema All Over Body. Cuticura Heals.

"When my baby was six days old eczema broke out all over his body in little red pimples. Later it spread to his head and face, and he was cross and fretful. It itched and burned causing him to scratch and the irritation prevented him from sleeping. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped him so I purchased more, and after using four cakes of Soap and about six boxes of Ointment he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. George Keever, Gladstone, Ill., Feb. 4, 1929.
